THE SESSION.

The session of the Legislature which opens today promises to rival, if it does not surpass, the acclamations which greeted the opening of the session of 1901. To do this will be no easy task, for the provincial law-makers have been so long and so often in the common language they have "propped their feet on the ground," procured a wholesome view of the relative importance of various and shaped measures to fit the conditions as they were and as they were being evolved. They inherited from the provincial legislature some good, some bad, some indifferent. Much of this had been called upon to meet the most difficult conditions. Some had to be replaced with measures more in keeping with the changed circumstances which the Legislature had to meet. But beside this it remained for them to take up a multitude of subjects with which the Assembly had not been called upon to deal, and to construct the legislative machinery for handling the varied problems involved. It is not surprising that the session be distinguished by clear perception of the things of most present moment, devotion to the advancement of the public interest, and sagacious legislation and judgment in providing for the carrying on of public business.

Nevertheless there are some hints of great importance still on the issue. The commission should first round-out a series of conspicuously public surveys. Most important of these is the sub-urban survey, which is being conducted in the north and the south this problem is of pressing concern, in the south because competition is needed and in the north because the land is not to be provided before development can take place. A policy to meet these needs will be submitted to the House of Commons in the near future and will in all likelihood constitute the most important single item on the economic agenda. There are other items of interest though of lesser importance. The commission inquiring into the conditions of the pork producing in the north, there they have already done their work and their conclusions will doubtless be presented for the members' consideration. The elevator also is being investigated. The members of the governments of the three Prairie Provinces for some time have pronounced on the matter, but the committee will and are to attend the election year will require attention. Some of the other items of investigation, the compensation act, if, as has been suggested, the Province finds it necessary to supplement this measure with a new one, will be of great importance and very important question will be posed up for consideration. The "external problem," the construction of the new international bridge, is of importance proportionate to its transcontinental importance, and with the other items of current business is of considerable importance. The commission's length but of very great consequence.

That a new treaty has been signed providing for the arbitration of boundary disputes between Canada and the United States is welcome news, and will be unanimously popular until Uncle Sam beats us at the next bargain-making.

The city council did well in approving the plan for a filtration system to be installed forthwith, capable of handling the probable water supply for the coming summer and of being extended to meet growing demands. This on the assumption that the system adopted is known to be capable of justifying its claims. This is to the consideration of the engineering department and the commissioners and supposedly they have been convinced of the efficiency of the system recommended. Another consideration wants up-to-date equipment, but it has no more money to put into experiments.

A petition is being circulated asking the Provincial legislature to enact legislation for the protection of neglected children, similar to the act in force in Ontario. The purpose is to deal with cases where parents are found unwilling or unable to properly bring up their offspring. The matter is an important one and worthy of careful attention, especially as to the policy to be adopted and the means for making this effective. In Ontario a home is maintained by the province to which such children are sent. Whether this course should be followed here is an important point arising from the proposal. Aside from this, however, much could undoubtedly be done by a competent official in securing suitable homes in private families for little ones whose circumstances deprive them of the opportunity of proper care and training.

The governor of British Honduras, who came to Canada in furtherance of the proposal to transfer the "Hindoo" from British Columbia to that country, told the Ottawa Canadian Club the other day why the movement had failed. The strangers had become possessed of the notion that they were to be removed forcibly. Being British subjects, and back of this, many of them being Sikhs, they took the stand that might have been expected. That the notion was a mistaken one did not at all mend matters. To try to force a British subject to leave one portion of the Empire—or to give him to believe he is to be forced to do so—about the surest way of defeating British subject he is likely to stand up for his rights and defend his rights and defy all and sundry to meddle with him, and none more likely to do so than the high-spirited, self-reliant, and enterprising people of India. That the Indians at Vancouver were driven into this position of helplessness and dependence, and degraded patriots, was completely outwitted, and openly vaunted that they were to be cowed from the British. The British, however, by insulting their pride and assaulting their rights these noisy individuals were reduced to a state of becoming visitors of the advantages of the novel to themselves, these might now be again grubbing roots and killing weeds, and the British might be able to trade their m^{ts} and m^{rs} and the people of the Pacific province began to increase their activities and the "Him" was no longer a vagrant, but a member of the category of vagrants and at the same time destroyed any desire they might have had to leave the country. The British are to be glad that they are in British Columbia.

dealing with the unrest in India. Swaine endorses opinions previously advanced by others—that the United States should encourage more university graduates. Education in India has been of necessity the donee of the British, and the country still has a long way to go before a self-sufficiency now need have for a job in the public expense. The Indians are not yet able to extract this much from the British, and the British are governed themselves accordingly. In the beautiful city on the bank of the Ganges, the British are still the young men turned to the civil service, the army, the navy, and the law. The well-paid officials make the end of education. Jobs and wages no longer are the incentive. The Indians who climb the slopes of education to drink the elixir of office, are not yet the Indians of the future. The Indian government leaders repeat on for wondrous ingenuity in the solution of present problems, but the country is still a vast, unimproved land some 300 millions, every man, woman, and child, still depending on the British for the state, for a career, for a job, for a living. The British still fill all the vacancies that could be filled. Yet the stream pours on and on, and the stream pours on and on.

the multitude of the disappointed and the weary. These cannot understand why they are being told to-day while white men are brought from England to fill important positions—and they go about the country whispering their wrongs and crying out for some racial justice. They are not asking for a new system, but for the educational system a new motive, to remove from the public mind the idea that a fatherly government will support all who struggle from poverty and to replace it with the idea that a student must be a man to shift for himself the common weal of life. For this it might be necessary to alter the character and scope of the system of education, to make it a more level of wholesome utility. For the distance it looks as though the men were over-ripe to stop grinding the officials and try to school and discipline the rising generations in the way of living without permanent help.

PEOPLE THREATENED. Protectionists should be the first to take aim at the possible development of aeromagic. All the evil which their philosophy leads them to dread may come with redoubled virulence when the ships are able to carry goods from distant points, and to ignore not only the imaginary lines of political organization but the custom house lines by which all the nations endeavor to protect themselves. The devastating deluge of foreign goods which looms portentously in many minds can be poured from a hundred air rights in Fort Saskatchewan Reporter. As a indication of the spirit of the times it is very interesting to note that in Montreal a club has been formed whose aim is to educate the people up to a knowledge of the benefits to be derived from a non-partisan system of government. Henry Dalby, for over a score of years chief editorial editor for the Montreal Star, and a life-long student of economics, was, and is one of the persistent, earnest advocates of this principle, and as a result of his efforts in Montreal includes one of the deepest and most dispassionate thinkers of the Canadian mercantile world.

The existence of this club, however, only furnished a definite instance of the new school of thought arising among men imbued with twentieth-century ideas. Upon a sound administrative basis, given the right conditions, working out problems in relation to the interests of the country's development and the benefit of its people—why, asks the new school, should last administration be looked upon by its opponents as existing for the good of one portion of the community only. The new school of thought, it is thought, might be animated by any such partisan feeling in its measures. No government in Canada today is run upon such principles of

Then why, asks the followers of the new school, should almost one-half of the people of any country be ranged against the men in control, fighting them—their ideas and policy at every turn no matter how these may honestly recommend themselves to the minds of their traditional opponents. For years it has been true of Canada, that no matter what benefit would accrue to the country at large from a measure brought in by a party in power it would be promptly torn into bits in debate by the opposing party and fiercely attacked at every possible ment, has been done too by men perfectly aware that they were themselves unable to improve upon the measure, but who acted out of a traditional sense of the duty of a man in opposition. Anything more detrimental than this deliberate opposition of a beneficial measure or project cannot easily be imagined. It does not need a new school of thought to maintain that the United States is a country in which a proposition is once put before a country in its own best interests that the citizens of that country to a man should support it. The Democratic Party is the only thing else have handicapped human progress on this sphere. Then let us put aside discussion and act as our best reason dictates in state affairs, even when the majority is against us. This is the injunction of the new school, and a very laudable bit of advice.

It is the new idea of "government without class" that is the more heady of the older countries than Western Canada because men have there more leisure to study economics and to survey changing conditions the world over. But the principle beneath it is sound one and of universal application.

It is the principle which underlies the American motto, and spirit which give that young nation power and fluency from its birth—the spirit of union: "United we stand; divided we fall." It is the old truism that in union there is weakness, and in isolation there is magnificent strength and progress.

REXBORO.
The regular monthly meeting of the Rensselaer County Liberal Association was held at the post office on Jan. 6th, 1909. The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, J. W. McCalland, vice-president, A. J. McCalland, and secretary, J. W. McCalland. An entertainment committee was appointed and it is expected a number of social evenings will be held in the near future. The committee decided to write a letter to the postmaster general to accompany the petition circulated in the district for a post office building in the town of Rensselaer. The Early History of Canada by J. W. McCalland was accepted. This will be given at the next meeting. Another

EDISON SOLVES POWER PROBLEM
Invents Storage Battery Which Will Drive a Car a Hundred Miles.

New York, Jan. 13.—Thomas A. Edison, in his laboratory in West Orange, N. J., yesterday expressed confidence in the success of his latest invention, a new type of power-propelled car, which is destined to solve the traffic problem in large cities. The scheme is to place a small engine in the rear seat of cars, and he says they can be sufficiently charged at the existing power lines to run an entire day continuously.

"No additional tracks, poles or power houses will be required," added Mr. Edison. "The car needs only a few parking facilities can be economically cared for by the new battery cars. They will run 100 miles without recharging, and will be able to stop and recharge, which brings the car to a stop for recharging. The cars will run on any rail, the present street car tracks or steam rails, and if they jump the tracks can get back on the rails with their own power."

Vancouver, B.C., January 13.—Frost has ruined all the stocks of potatoes above ground in the district near Vancouver. Prices have jumped over ten dollars in two days. The only stocks in store here are five hundred tons, and that constitutes nearly the entire supply of the coast cities.

your Stomach, Heart, or Kidneys are weak, try at least, a few doses only of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. In five or ten days only, the result will surprise you. A few cents will cover the cost. And here is why help comes so quickly. Dr. Shoop doesn't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. Dr. Shoop's Restorative goes directly to the weak and failing nerves. Each organ has its own controlling nerve. When these nerves fail, the dependent organs must suffer. The only way to restore the organs to necessity, failure is the main, yet vital truth, clearly tells why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is so universally successful. Its success is leading druggists everywhere to give it universal preference. A test will surely tell. Sold by all dealers.

And Asks for Passing of Restrictive
Legislation. The Temperance
Advocates Introduction into

A large delegation, composed of clergymen and other gentlemen, representing the Temperance and Moral Reform League of Alberta, called upon Premier Rutherford and the members of his cabinet. The delegation, presenting a number of petitions from temperance advocates, requested the government to give a careful hearing to the petitions, and to look into the whole matter thoroughly. The form of petition asked for:

1. A local option law which gives the right to any municipality to cut the law traffic in intoxicating liquors.
2. The majority vote of the electors to elect a local option law.
3. The majority vote of the electors to elect a local option law.
4. The majority vote of the electors to elect a local option law.

The closing of the bars and night clubs on Christmas Day, Good Friday and Thanksgiving Day.

Amendment of the Liquor License Ordinance, making it compulsory for minors and any person who may be intoxicated to leave the premises.

That license inspectors be required to take affidavits from the proprietors of every saloon for license under the ordinance, making it compulsory for minors and any person who may be intoxicated to leave the premises.

One point, brought in by the Rev. Mr. Huestis, of Red Deer, and with which the government was favorably impressed, was the question of a text book on hygiene, to be given to the children of the human system of alcohol and narcotics.

The Temperance and Moral Reform League of Alberta, through its delegation, presented a number of petitions from temperance advocates, requesting the government to give a careful hearing to the petitions, and to look into the whole matter thoroughly.
